The creative process is a joyful dance between heaven and earth. Join us and artist Anita Miller as we learn to create liturgical art for our congregation. Anita specializes in creating liturgical art for temporary and permanent installations. She will join us at Holy Cross for a weekend of inspiration and creativity. Her leadership will guide us through a process from the development of the ideas to the full implementation and installation of liturgical art that will enhance our worship experience.

Our schedule: We will begin on Friday evening with a meditation and creative brainstorming, ending with a plan and a list of resources. On Saturday, we will celebrate the joy of our working hands as we gather our supplies and then build our artwork together. On Sunday during worship, we will share our work with the congregation as we dedicate it to the glory of God. Learning this process will help us to create ongoing art throughout the liturgical year and for special occasions.

You do not need to be artistic to participate. A variety of skills and talents are needed and celebrated. Everyone has something to contribute. All are encouraged to take part in the process of visioning, creating, gathering resources, working with your hands, helping with installation.

Anita Miller is a liturgical artist in the truest sense: Her art is “the work of the people.” A member of Gethsemane Lutheran Church, Columbus, Ohio, Anita has designed art for her own congregation and other Lutheran churches. Karen Asmus-Alsnauer, pastor of Gethsemane, states: “Anita brings out the artist in us all.”

Please note that there is no charge to attend and learn the process. However, all art created here is intended for use at Holy Cross Lutheran Church.
